The City of Dubai

The Emirate of Dubai is the second largest of the seven Emirates. Dubai's cityscape is always dynamic with its constant urge to construct bigger and better than before. Dubai constantly competes with itself, trying to draw in tourists to a dream-like world of attractions. This drive is clearly visible in its tourist attractions, landmarks, shopping centres, parks and hotels. Dubai has emerged as a cosmopolitan metropolis that has grown steadily to become the business and cultural hub of the Middle East and the Persian Gulf region.

Having expanded along both banks of the Dubai Creek, the city is divided into two parts - Deira on the northern side and Bur Dubai in the south, as well as the top tourist destination of Jumeirah which extends into the sea.

Abras are traditional water taxis which are regularly used to ferry people to and from either side of the Creek. Each side has its share of fine mosques and busy souqs, public buildings, shopping malls, hotels, office towers, banks, hospitals, schools, apartments and villas with attractions especially concentrated in Bur Dubai.

Dubai is known as the 'Shopping Capital of the Middle East'. With over a hundred malls, shopping centres and souks, there is no better place to find products at unbeatable prices. Cars, clothing and couture, jewellery, electronics, furnishing, sporting equipment, cinema theatres, as well as numerous restaurants, cafes and eateries are all likely to be found under the same roof.

Delve into the glittering, fast-paced and cosmopolitan home city and discover a blend of modern life and traditional Arabian culture.

From the timeless tranquility of the desert to the lively bustle of the souk, Dubai not only boasts the best of contemporary sights but has also preserved some of the world's most intriguing historical attractions.
