Purpose and Summary of Policy on Scheduling and Late Submission of Coursework

This document provides the policy framework for the University’s Submission and Scheduling of Coursework Policy, which has been in place since 2018/19. A revised version was introduced from 2022/23.

This policy applies to all forms of coursework, including projects and dissertations. The key policy aspects are as follows:

1) All coursework should be scheduled by Schools so as to minimise clashing deadlines or bunching of assessment in order to provide a more manageable workload for students;

2) Coursework can be scheduled up to and including Week 14 (ie in Exams and Assessment Diets).

3) No individual extensions are permitted under any circumstances;

4) A standard 30% deduction from the mark awarded will be applied up to a maximum of five working days). For example, if the awarded mark for coursework is 65, and is submitted late, then the following deduction will be applied:

   \[ 65 \times 0.7 = 45.5 \]

   Mark for that piece of coursework would be 45.5;

5) A 0 F will be awarded for coursework submitted after five working days, unless there are approved mitigating circumstances, and no formative feedback will be provided;

6) Coursework submitted late will be flagged to those involved in the marking and grading process;

This policy is intended to ensure equity and fairness for all students on taught programmes across all modes and locations.

This policy should be read in conjunction with the University’s Feedback on Coursework Policy.

Scope

The policy applies to all Heriot-Watt University taught students (undergraduate and postgraduate) across all modes and locations from the start of academic year 2018/19; this revised version is applicable from AY 2022/23.

Coursework is defined ‘as work carried out by students which constitutes, or contributes towards, their overall grade for a course, but which is assessed separately from written examinations. This includes undergraduate and postgraduate taught dissertations and projects.

See subsequent section on exemptions from the late submission policy for time-limited coursework.

Examples of coursework are provided in Types of Assessment: Policy and Administrative Definitions.

---

1 Individual reasonable adjustments (coursework) must be considered in collaboration with the Disability Service within Student Wellbeing Service. Extensions are not automatically applied for all students with reasonable adjustments. Following a discussion between a student and the Disability Advisor, an “extension to deadlines justification” will be added to their record, indicating that an extension might be required. The student will then request an extension with justification on a case-by-case basis with each lecturer. One week is the recommended extension timeframe - Course Teams should ensure that such extensions are not set during student vacation periods. Students are discouraged from continually requesting extensions; rather, the Disability Advisors will work with students on developing their organisational and time management skills.

2 There is an exemption for Course Leaders who may opt to give an extension to an entire class in exceptional circumstances; this includes circumstances in which the University has invoked Regulation A10: Authorities in Exceptional Circumstances.
The following procedures support the implementation of the above summary of policy statement. The first section focuses on coursework scheduling; the second on late submission of coursework.

Scheduling Coursework

Assessment Information on Canvas and Calendar of Assessment Deadlines

It is the responsibility of the School to document, prior to the start of teaching, the following on the Canvas Course page, and elsewhere as appropriate, for both formative (not credit-rated) and summative (contributes to the final mark/grade) coursework:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date issued</th>
<th>Assessment submission deadline</th>
<th>Format of Submission</th>
<th>When and how feedback will be returned</th>
<th>Format of feedback</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Schools should ensure that all students receive/have access to a published calendar of assessment deadlines for all their courses each semester.

Roles and Responsibilities

Responsibilities relating to coursework scheduling are specified in Assessment: School Roles and Responsibilities.

Key Procedures for Coursework Scheduling

Coursework can be scheduled throughout Teaching Weeks (Schools’ responsibility) and for submission during the Exam and Assessment Diets (Schools’ responsibility), subject to the requirements below.

1) Coursework should be set up in the normal Canvas site, and can be scheduled up to and including Week 14 (ie in Exams and Assessment Diets).

2) Schools should ensure that coursework deadlines are set during weekdays only and at a time which is fair and equitable for each campus/timezone (eg 0900-1700 local time) and not advantageous only for UK-based students. For multi-campus coursework, a deadline of midday should be adopted. Submission timings should be set up on Canvas as appropriate.

3) Schools should not schedule a coursework deadline and an exam (either in-person or online) on the same day within the same course.

4) Coursework which is scheduled in the Exams/Assessment Diet and is less than 48 hours duration will be timetabled by RAS to avoid clashes with in-person exams. The scheduling of all other coursework is the responsibility of the Course Leader. Course Leaders are responsible for ensuring that all required reasonable adjustments are made for students who require them.

5) Schools should take into account the full suite of assessment which students will be undertaking when scheduling coursework, providing sufficient time for preparation for both coursework and exams, and being mindful of assessment bunching within and across courses. A programme-level approach to scheduling is recommended, as per the Academic Management Structures, where it is stated, in the remit of the Year Co-ordinator, that it is the responsibility of the Year Co-ordinator, working with the programme teaching team, to coordinate assignment submission dates across courses. For PGT programmes, this role should be undertaken by the Programme Director of Studies.

6) Schools should set coursework deadlines which allow the “up to five working days” principle to be applied. In such circumstances, consideration should be given to coursework deadlines being set in the final week of the Exams and Assessment Diets, eg will the School permit the coursework to be submitted late in the first week of teaching after the associated break? In revising this policy for implementation from 2022/23, the Learning and Teaching Academic Year Group (now the Learning and Teaching Academic Operations Committee) recommended that coursework deadlines be set at least six working days before the end of the Exams and Assessment Diet to allow the “up to five working days” concession (part of the 30% deduction specified in the Submission of Coursework Policy) to be applied in full before the end of the last day of the diet and thereby avoid any consequent impact on marking, results processing, Course Assessment Boards and results release. However, the need to avoid bunching and clashing of deadlines was also recognised and it was agreed that Schools should seek to manage this in an appropriate way.

7) Schools should ensure that students are made fully aware of instances when there are multiple forms of assessment in the Exams and Assessment Diet, eg deadlines for coursework, timed coursework assignments and in-person exams.

8) It should be highlighted to students that it is part of their professional and personal development, and a key time management skill, to be able to manage conflicting deadlines, and that they should accordingly plan and prioritise their time and workload to enable them to submit coursework by the specified deadlines.

9) Each School will ensure that coursework deadlines are coordinated and the volume of assessment is appropriate to the course learning outcomes and the notional student effort hours so that workloads and deadlines are manageable for students. In light of this, it is then the responsibility of the student to work professionally and plan their time accordingly to ensure that all assessed coursework is submitted by the submission deadline. School should ensure that students are made fully aware of their responsibilities in this respect.

The following guidance has been produced by the Student Representative Bodies:

Well-planned assessment scheduling allows both staff and students to undertake their work and studies more effectively. When assessments are spread out across the full semester, key pinch points are removed and student effort can be distributed more evenly across all important topics. Concentration of student effort around bunched assessment deadlines impacts overall learning, as students prioritise some work, and therefore some learning outcomes, over others. Assessment throughout the entire semester enables students to reinforce their understanding of a greater range of topics rather than a small selection.

Conversely, “assessment bunching” can have a detrimental effect on student attainment: with too many assignments to complete simultaneously, students cannot concentrate sufficient effort on each one in addition to continuing their studies.

Volume of Assessment and Assessment Review/Redesign

Feedback from students and from some External Examiners as well as anecdotal evidence at various committees have highlighted that overassessment continues to be an area of concern across Heriot-Watt generally. This is a long-standing issue for the University and so Schools should be mindful of the impact on both students and staff (the latter particularly in relation to workload and wellbeing given the volume of marking, Exam Boards etc). The University’s strategic Transforming Assessment initiative is designed to assist Schools in redesigning assessment, including addressing issues related to overassessment.

The Learning and Teaching Academy provides a wide range of support for Schools in planning for and designing assessment, including designing an appropriate balance of assessment. Teaching teams refreshing course and assessment design are encouraged to make use of these resources:

- Curriculum and Assessment Design Toolkit: Assessment
- Assessment and Feedback
- LTA Support for Schools

The LTA updates this information each academic year, providing a suite of resources and support for teaching teams in preparation of the start of the session. Check out the LTA SharePoint Hub for current information. Further support and guidance are available from the LTA: LTAcademy@hw.ac.uk

Late Submission of Coursework

Key procedures in support of the University’s policy on late submission of coursework are set out below.

1) In the case where a student submits coursework up to five working days late, and the student has valid mitigating circumstances, the mitigating circumstances policy will apply and appropriate mitigation will be applied. Students are encouraged to apply for mitigating circumstances if they think that they will be late in submitting their coursework due to circumstances outwith their control. Where circumstances will result, or have resulted, in a deadline being missed, students should apply for this to be considered under the Mitigating Circumstances Policy.

2) Feedback will be provided on all coursework submitted up to five working days late. Any coursework submitted after five working days of the set submission date shall be automatically awarded a 0 F, with no feedback provided. Schools should emphasise to students the importance of being able to manage their workload to avoid being in this situation.
3) There will be no extensions granted to coursework (this includes projects and dissertations on both undergraduate and postgraduate taught programmes).

4) Coursework which is submitted late shall be flagged as being late by appropriate colleagues involved in the assessment and recording of marks and grades.

5) It is important that students have appropriate information on how to apply for the following if they are unable to submit their coursework on time:
   - Temporary Suspension of Studies
   - Mitigating Circumstances

Implementation

It is the responsibility of each School to:

- Ensure that coursework submission deadlines are co-ordinated and available to students at the start of each academic semester (in the Academic Management Structures, the co-ordination of coursework deadlines across the semester is detailed as being the responsibility of the Year Co-ordinator in collaboration with the programme team)\(^3\). The co-ordination of coursework within a course is the responsibility of the Course Leader. These deadlines must, wherever possible, remain fixed and only altered with the permission of the Director of Learning and Teaching. Such changes must be clearly communicated to students in line with the expectations of this policy;
- Emphasise implications of the submission of coursework policy, particularly the consequences of late submission, at all campuses and across all modes;
- Flag coursework which has been submitted late to colleagues involved in the assessment and recording of marks and grades;
- Offer guidance and support to students on all available options should they be unable to submit their coursework on time. Notably:
  - Temporary Suspension of Studies;
  - Mitigating Circumstances.

It is the responsibility of the Registry and Academic Support Directorate to:

- Emphasise implications of the late submission of coursework policy and other available options to students clearly through a variety of communication channels across all campuses, partnerships and online provision.

It is the responsibility of the Learning and Teaching Academic Operations Committee to:

- Monitor annually the effectiveness of the policy and process by reviewing statistics, engaging with student representatives and colleagues and to take forward any enhancements to the process;
- Review the policy on a five-yearly basis;
- Submit any changes to the policy for consideration and approval to the University Committee for Learning and Teaching.

Time-Limited Coursework

Midterm class-based tests, web tests, presentations, coursework to be completed within a specific timeframe (including HWO Final Online Assessments for Heriot-Watt Online courses) and other time-limited activities are exempt from this policy. The following arrangements apply to time-limited coursework.

Student has missed the Timed Assignment and No Mitigating Circumstances

If a student has missed a class test/web test or other time-limited coursework (i.e., there is no submission by the end of the specified time period and there are no mitigating circumstances), then an ABS is given, as per standard, approved arrangements (see p10 of UG and PG Assessment Procedures document).

Mitigating Circumstances

If particular circumstances prevent or delay a student from completing or submitting a time-limited coursework, then the student should apply, as advised, under the Mitigating Circumstances Policy for this to be taken into consideration. The normal processes will then follow depending on whether or not the mitigating circumstances are approved.

---

\(^3\) See Assessment: School Roles and Responsibilities for an overview of responsibilities for assessment within Schools.
Late Submission of All Timed Assignments
As explained above, the University's Submission of Coursework Policy does not apply to timed-limited coursework of any form, which are specifically exempt from the “30%/5 working days” concession. As a consequence, assignments submitted after the allocated duration will be regarded as late and will not be marked, receiving 0 F (unless there are valid MCs which have been approved).

Examinations
Examinations for taught programmes are centrally scheduled and invigilated: they can be either hand-written in a University approved exam venue or completed online (hosted on Canvas quizzes) in a University approved Computer Lab/Test Centre. The submission of both types of examinations does not need a specific policy relating to late submission, as invigilators will gather in all hand-written scripts in the case of hand-written exams, and, in the case of exams being completed online via Canvas quizzes in an approved Computer Lab/Test Centre, there will be an automatic cut-off at the end of the allocated time period for these invigilated online exams.

Guidance on Communicating to Students
Schools should communicate assessment deadlines to students and should ensure that: this information is presented on Canvas; deadlines are presented as part of an overall schedule for the semester; all students receive/have access to a published calendar of assessment deadlines for all their courses each semester.

In communicating assessment schedules to students, Schools should make students aware that, although assessment schedules will have been carefully planned, there will be occasions when deadlines might conflict or be close together and that in-person exams might be held on consecutive days, and that time-limited coursework might also be scheduled for completion in the Exam and Assessment Diets.

It should be highlighted to students that it is part of their professional and personal development, and a key time management skill, to be able to manage conflicting deadlines, and that they should accordingly plan and prioritise their time and workload.

Schools should also bring to students’ attention the resources and support available to them (from Student Wellbeing Services incl Student Success Advisors, the Skills Hub and the Student Union Advice Hub) in areas such as assessment, time management and dealing with exam anxiety. See also Supporting Our Students SharePoint site.

Approved by the University Committee for Learning and Teaching, 9 May 2018; approved by the Senate, 6 June 2018. Revised version approved by the UCLT, 27 July 2022, and endorsed by the LTAYG, 13 July 2022. Factual accuracy updates: 31 July 2023; 25 September 2023.