You should make your academic supervisor aware that you are pregnant so necessary risk assessments can be completed for you and your pregnancy. Make yourself familiar with the University risk assessment process and those applicable to any activities you are involved in. Follow any direction or instructions deemed necessary by risk assessment outcomes. Please make your academic supervisor aware of any medical conditions that may impact on an activity or be a potential hazard.

Make yourself familiar with the rest and feeding facilities on campus. You will be shown these during your appointment with Student Wellbeing.

Make yourself familiar with the Mitigating Circumstances policy. If your pregnancy or maternity affects examinations or assessments you should submit an application with supporting evidence.

Notify the University in writing at least 15 weeks before you intend to take Maternity Related Absence.

I confirm that I have read and understood the Wellbeing Checklist and the steps I must now take.
